The Virginia Tech golf media guide is a publication of the Virginia Tech Athletics Communications Office. This year's guide was developed by the golf coaching staff in cooperation with Associate Director of Strategic Communications Bill Dyer. John Sours designed the guide, and Dave Knachel contributed photography. Printing by Worth Higgins & Associates of Richmond, Va.

With several proven upperclassmen returning and highly talented incoming players, expectations remain very high for the Virginia Tech golf team in the coming year. Head coach Jay Hardwick's task has been to build on the team's successful history by continuing to develop his players, all toward the ultimate goal of once again competing for the national championship.

The team finished in the Top 10 of every event in the fall season, opening with a runner-up finish in the Marshall Invitational, with four players finishing inside the Top 15 individually. They followed that performance with another win in the Janney/VCU Shootout, Virginia Tech's fourth title there in five years, posting a tournament record 28-under par despite only playing 36 holes, as the second round was rained out. Inclement weather has been a recurring theme in the fall the past few years, and unfortunately, this year was no exception. The team never teed it up at the Primland Invitational, which was cancelled due to a blanket of fog that lasted for two straight days. This enabled the Hokies to add the Tar Heel Intercollegiate to the schedule, only to have Hurricane Matthew shorten that tournament to a one-day, 36-hole event as well, where they finished in 10th place. Virginia Tech then posted a fifth place finish among a very strong field at the Bank of Tennessee Intercollegiate, and concluded the fall with another 10th place finish at the Bridgestone Collegiate Invitational.

This year's squad consists of two seniors, two juniors, three sophomores and two freshmen. Senior captain Joey Lane, the team's MVP last year, continued his fine play into this fall, adding a collegiate victory to his list of accomplishments when he won the individual title at the Janney/VCU Shootout. His rounds of 67-67 tied JMU's Ryan Cole, and Lane then claimed the trophy with a birdie on the sixth hole of the playoff. It says a lot about the strength of Tech's top players that he was fourth on the team in scoring for the fall with a 71.85 average, including eight rounds at par-or-better. Fellow senior Drew Johnson competed in the lineup four times in the fall, with his best finish being a 14th place performance at the Marshall Invitational. Juniors Ian Hildebrand and Dan Woodbury played sparingly in the fall, but will continue to work toward more playing time in the spring.

Mark Lawrence has the lowest final round stroke average on the team.

The sophomore class was bolstered by newcomer Mark Lawrence, a transfer from Auburn by way of Richmond, Virginia. He certainly made his presence felt, finishing the fall season second on the team in scoring, including a final round stroke average (Crunch Time) of 69.75. Lawrence posted eight rounds at par-or-better, with his best result being a fifth place finish at the Marshall Invitational. Another sophomore, Logan Yates, was third on the team in scoring with an average of even par, 71.54, including nine rounds at par-or-better. He solidified his place in the lineup following a pair of seventh place finishes in the first two events. Sophomore Blake Fiest gained valuable experience while competing as an individual at the Janney/VCU Shootout.

Freshman Sarit Suwannarut, from Bangkok, Thailand, came into the program as the highest ranked player to ever compete for the Hokies. Ranked No. 1 in the world among international players for the Class of 2016, he won an ACEAN PGA TOUR event three weeks before enrolling in school with a 16-under par total and a playoff victory over that tour's leading money winner. He has lived up to the billing, opening with a school-record tying 64 in his first collegiate round and finishing third in his first two tournaments. Suwannarut led the team in four of the five events in the fall and was second-low for the Hokies in the other tournament, when Lane won the Janney/VCU Shootout. He is the first Virginia Tech golfer to finish a fall or spring season with a scoring average under 70, at 69.92, which included 11 of 13 rounds at par-or-better. The other gifted freshman, Tom Crow, competed three times.

Under the guidance of Hall of Fame head coach Jay Hardwick and 2009 NCAA Assistant Coach of the Year Brian Sharp, this talented group is determined to continue its success in the always-demanding ACC. The spring season will once again begin in Puerto Rico, and with the number of outstanding tournaments that will follow, the Hokies will certainly be well prepared for the ACC championship and a return to NCAA postseason play.

ACADEMIC SUPPORT

Finding a balance between academic accomplishments and athletic success is the focus for Coach Jay Hardwick's golf program at Virginia Tech, and Student Athlete Academic Support Services (SAASS) takes a very personal role in the supervision and support of all student-athletes. The advising office continuously engages with other campus agencies to help student-athletes in their continuing pursuit of academic achievement.

SAASS provides programming for student-athletes from their freshman year through graduation. This includes a comprehensive orientation to Tech, study hall, mentoring, tutoring, academic monitoring, academic recognition and eligibility education.

Virginia Tech's graduation success rate for student-athletes has remained quite high in recent years and was 92 percent in 2016. Additionally, men's golf is one of five Tech programs with a four-year weighted average of 100 percent graduation.

In addition to posting impressive graduation figures, Virginia Tech's student-athletes continue to excel in the classroom. For the 2016 calendar year, they earned a combined 615 3.0 GPA's, with 336 of those being named to the Dean's list for a GPA over 3.4. These student-athletes and students from support areas were recognized at the Athletic Director's Honors Breakfast last spring.

The SAASS office has been especially beneficial to the golf team, which consistently posts grade point averages among the best of any athletic team at Tech. The past five seasons the team has been recognized by the NCAA for a perfect Academic Progress Rate, and has been named an All-Academic Team by Farmer's Insurance and the GCAA. During Hardwick's years, the graduation rate for golfers who have completed their eligibility at Tech is 99 percent.

The golf team has received many accolades for its work in the classroom in recent years. In 2009, Drew Weaver was selected as the Outstanding Male Student-Athlete at Virginia Tech by the ACC, the second consecutive year this honor went to a member of the golf team, following Jurrian van der Vaart's recognition in 2008. In 2013, Bryce Chalkley was named an All-American Scholar by the GCAA, and received this honor again in 2014. In 2016, Maclain Huge also earned All-American Scholar honors, becoming only the fourth Hokies player to earn this distinction twice. Last season Drew Johnson, Joey Lane, and Ryan Mondy were also named All-American Scholars. Lane was also named to the All-ACC Academic Men's Golf Team, and Will Duma, Ian Hildebrand, Huge, Johnson, Mondy, and Dan Woodbury joined Lane in being named to the ACC Academic Honor Roll in 2016 as well.

SAASS offices are located in the West Side of Lane Stadium where student-athletes have access to state-of-the-art technology, quiet study facilities, individualized tutorial rooms, and direct access to the SAASS staff.

The 18,000-square-foot facility provides the student-athlete with a variety of study environments conducive to their success. Athletes can use these facilities between classes, after practice or in the evenings, with flexible hours tailored to make the most of a student athlete's limited time.

The SAASS office is comprised of a team of ten professionals directed by Matt Mayotte. Mayotte is in his third year at Virginia Tech, however he previously served as director of Student-Athlete Services at Troy University in Alabama for more than nine years. Mayotte works directly with the golf team.

The golf team is leading the way with excellence. With the guidance and support of the SAASS, it is not difficult to see why.

Seniors Joey Lane and Drew Johnson were named All-American Scholars last season.

HEAD COACH JAY HARDWICK

Celia Hardwick*

PGA Professional and Head Coach Jay Hardwick is in his 34th season at Virginia Tech. During this time, Hardwick has developed the Hokie golf program into one that not only wins, but also does so the right way. Academic integrity, solid fundamentals and a sense of right are trademarks of this program. The Hokies don't just win, they achieve.

With his attention to detail and the support of an outstanding group of boosters, Hardwick has brought Virginia Tech golf into national prominence. A look at his accomplishments the past 34 years shows just how successful he and his Hokies have been. His teams have finished in the top 10 of 289 tournaments and have won 40 tournaments, including a nation's best six titles during the 2000-01 season. Under Hardwick's direction, a Hokie team or individual has competed in ten consecutive NCAA Division I Golf Regionals, and most recently qualified for the 2014 NCAA Championship at Prairie Dunes Country Club in Hutchinson, Kan. Virginia Tech also had consecutive trips to the Regionals from 2001 to 2004, advancing to the NCAA Championship two of those years and finishing eighth in 2001. In total, Hardwick's players have been to 16 NCAA Regionals and advanced to the NCAA finals seven times.

Since 1993, Hardwick has guided the Hokies to eight conference championships, becoming the only coach in NCAA history to have captured conference titles in four different leagues with the same school. His teams won back-to-back championships in the Metro Conference in 1993 and 1994, and again in the Atlantic 10 Conference in 1996 and 1997. Virginia Tech claimed the BIG EAST Conference Championship in 2001, its first season of competition in the league, duplicated the feat in 2002, and made it a three-peat in 2003, staging a dramatic come-from-behind victory over Notre Dame on the Irish's home course, where the team overcame an 11-stroke deficit on the last three holes.

Coach Jay Hardwick, with his wife Celia, receives the PGA's 2005 Bill Strasbaugh Award from Paul Michaelian, president of the Middle Atlantic PGA, at the MAPGA Honor Awards banquet.

When the Virginia Tech community was rocked by the tragedy of April 16, 2007, Hardwick mourned with his players and then went about helping the community in the best way he knew how: he and his team of achievers captured one of the most improbable, but well-earned, ACC titles in any sport. His group of players, with tears in their eyes and a strong will, tied Georgia Tech for the 2007 ACC Golf Championship six days after the tragedy.

A tireless worker, Hardwick has taken on more duties and responsibilities over the years. In January 2003, he was named Director of Golf Operations at Virginia Tech, a position that not only continues his stewardship over the Virginia Tech Golf Course, but also the Pete Dye River Course of Virginia Tech. Since 2004, when the Hokies joined the Atlantic Coast Conference, Hardwick has overseen a program to improve facilities and continue the quest to remain among the elite programs in collegiate golf. "The River" underwent a major renovation that year by renowned golf course architect Pete Dye. The renovation included a new state-of-the-art practice facility for the golf team and other amenities that afford Hokie golfers one of the finest team-oriented practice complexes in the nation. He has also built a solid financial foundation for the program, receiving 36 endowed scholarships over the past 30 years, which will allow numerous student-athletes to continue their careers at the collegiate level.

Head Coach Jay Hardwick and Associate Head Coach Brian Sharp have teamed up to create a winning program at Virginia Tech.

Never one to prize individual honors, Hardwick has nonetheless received many accolades that are testament to the mark he has left on collegiate golf and the golf world as a whole. In December 2012, Hardwick was presented with the GCAA Service Award for outstanding service to Virginia Tech and the sport of golf for over 30 years. In 2007 he was inducted into the Golf Coaches Association of America's Hall of Fame. He received the award at the association's annual banquet in Orlando. Sharing the dais with Hardwick and the two other inductees was the late Arnold Palmer, who received the Lifetime Achievement Award from the GCAA. Additionally, in 1994 Hardwick received one of his greatest honors when he was selected as the 11th inductee to the Virginia PGA Hall of Fame, making him the youngest member of this elite group.

He was named the inaugural recipient of the Labron Harris Sr., Award in 2005, given by E-Z-GO Textron, in association with the PGA of America. This award is presented to the college or high school coach and PGA Professional whose support of the game through teaching, coaching and involvement in the community has helped ensure the continued growth of the game and represent the finest qualities the game has to offer. He was also named the recipient of the Bill Strausbaugh Award presented by the Middle Atlantic PGA in 2005. This award bestows special recognition on a PGA member who has made significant contributions through mentoring of PGA Professionals and through involvement in community and charitable activities.

Hardwick was named the BIG EAST Conference Coach of the Year in 2001, 2002 and 2003. In 1996 and 1997 he was chosen the Atlantic 10 Conference Coach of the Year, and was also named Metro Conference Coach of the Year in 1992 and 1993. In addition, the coaching members of the Golf Coaches Association of America awarded him the NCAA Golf Coach of the Year for District 3-North for the 1993-94 season. He also received the inaugural Virginia Collegiate Coach of the Year award in 1993 and was selected for the same honor again in 1994, 2001, 2013 and 2014.

In the spirit of Virginia Tech's motto "Ut Prosim" (that I may serve), Hardwick has always believed in giving back to the game and volunteering his time. In 2016 Hardwick was appointed to the six member All-American Committee where he will be involved with the Jack Nicklaus Award, the Ben Hogan Award, and the Palmer Cup Team for the next six years. He will serve as chairman of the Jack Nicklaus Award Committee in 2017. He is a past vice president of the Virginia chapter of the Middle Atlantic PGA, having also served on the tournament rules and regulations committee, the membership committee, and the employment and club relations committee. He has been a head professional for 44 years and is a Class "A" Member, Quarter Century Club Member and Life Member of the PGA of America.

Hardwick was elected president of the BIG EAST Golf Coaches Association for the 2003-04 season and served on the NCAA Golf District Advisory Committee from 1994 to 1997, becoming chairman of District III-North in his last year on the panel. He also was a member of the GCAA Wilson Coaches Top 25 Poll and the Golf Digest Collegiate Poll and served on the All-Region Committee. Hardwick has twice been selected by the NCAA to serve as an instructor at the Youth Education through Sports (YES) golf clinic, which was held at the site of the NCAA Golf Championship. He conducted a clinic in 1990 at Innisbrook, Fla., and again in 1996 in Chattanooga, Tenn. Hardwick has been an instructor at the Championship Coaches Golf School since 1986. During this time he has taught at 80 golf schools.

In 2001 he was an instructor at the Hall of Fame Teaching and Coaching Seminar at Walt Disney World Golf Resort. Norwegian Cruise Lines selected Hardwick to serve as the golf coordinator in their 1991 NFL/PGA Instruction Program. He conducted golf clinics on the five southern Caribbean Islands of Barbados, Martinique, St. Maarten, Antigua and St. Thomas.

In the summer of 1992, Hardwick was chosen to coach Team USA at the World Junior Team Championship, held in Izumo City, Japan. It marked the first time the United States had officially sponsored a junior team in international competition. Team USA won the gold medal in the 12-team tournament and four of Team USA's players placed in the top 10, including Justin Roof of Conway, S.C., who captured the individual title.

An excellent teacher of the game, Hardwick has compiled an impressive list of playing accomplishments as well. In the fall of 2009, less than a year after reconstructive shoulder surgery, he achieved perhaps the most impressive feat of his playing career by winning the State Senior Open of Virginia. In 1995 he won the Middle Atlantic PGA Head Professional Championship by one shot after he birdied the last five holes. That year, he also won the Bobby Jones/Homestead Invitational at the Lower and Upper Cascades with rounds of 68-65 for a seven shot victory. In addition, he was named a member of the PGA Challenge Cup Team for 1995, 1996 and 1997. He qualified for the National PGA Club Professional Championship in 1978, 1988 and 1992 and was selected by the PGA as a member of the Yamaha Cup team in 1988. He won the 1981 Spalding International Professional Championship in Castle Harbour, Bermuda, and was low pro in the Virginia PGA State Open in 1976. Hardwick also holds five course records, two tournament records and has twice shot 29 in competition.

A Narrows, Va., native, Hardwick played collegiate golf for the same team he now coaches. During his four-year playing career at Tech, the Hokies posted a 64-9 match play record and won three straight state intercollegiate championships. Hardwick was a four-year letterman for Tech and captain of the 1971 squad that claimed the state crown.

After graduating in 1971 with a degree in business administration, Hardwick turned pro and played for a year on the Florida winter tour. In 1973 he became the head professional at Giles Country Club in Pearisburg, Va., where he developed an outstanding junior golf program. He held that position for 10 years before returning to his alma mater. Upon his departure, the club members presented him and his family with a lifetime membership.

Hardwick, who officiated high school and college basketball for 25 years, retired from the sport in 1997 after working more than 1,000 games.

He is married to the former Celia Martin of Pembroke, Va. The couple has a son Cris, daughter-in-law Melissa and grandsons Jacob Dylan and Aiden Thomas, who reside in Blacksburg.

THE HARDWICK YEARS

The Hokies' Individual Honors Since 1984

A proven recruiter who emphasizes the ideal of the student-athlete, Jay Hardwick has built the golf program around players who are standouts in the classroom as well as on the golf course. During his tenure, the graduation rate for golfers who have completed their eligibility at Virginia Tech is 99 percent. In Hardwick's first four seasons of coaching, the Hokies placed different players on consecutive Academic All-America squads; Jake Allison was named to the 1985 Golf Coaches Association Academic All-America team and Mark Teachey earned this distinction in 1986. Carl Wakely received this same prestigious recognition in 2006, now referred to as an All-American Scholar. In 2008, Jurrian van der Vaart and Drew Weaver became the fourth and fifth All-American Scholars in Virginia Tech history and Weaver became the first Tech player to earn this award twice when he was named an All-American Scholar again in 2009. Both van der Vaart and Weaver were named the Virginia Tech ACC Male Scholar-Athlete of the Year in 2008 and 2009, respectively. In 2013, Bryce Chalkley became the sixth player to be named an All-American Scholar for the Hokies and received this honor again in 2014. Maclain Huge earned this distinction in 2015. Most recently, an impressive four Virginia Tech players were named All-American Scholars in 2016, including Huge's second recognition alongside Drew Johnson, Joey Lane and Ryan Mondy.

In the past 19 seasons, 11 Tech players were named to the A-10 All-Conference team and 10 more earned All-BIG EAST honors. In 2008, van der Vaart became the first-ever Hokie to earn ACC all-conference honors, an honor that Weaver earned in 2009. In 2013, both Mikey Moyers and Scott Vincent were named to the All-ACC team. In 2014, Vincent was joined by teammates Chalkley and Trevor Cone on the All-ACC team. Cone and Vincent were again named All-ACC in 2015. In total, Hardwick's players have been named to the all-state team 59 times, the all-conference team 40 times, the GCAA All-Region team 16 times and named All-America 22 times.

ASSOCIATE HEAD COACH BRIAN SHARP

One of the top assistant coaches in collegiate golf, Brian Sharp is in his 14th season at Virginia Tech and in July 2008 was promoted to associate head coach. He graduated from Virginia Tech in 1995 with a degree in finance and received his MBA from the Pamplin College of Business in 2006. During his career with the Hokies, he was a four-year letterwinner on the golf team.

Sharp was named the recipient of the 2009 Jan Strickland Award presented by TaylorMade-Adidas to the Assistant Coach of the Year, as selected by the Golf Coaches Association of America. The Strickland Award is given to the NCAA Division I, II, III or NAIA assistant coach that, among other things, has excelled in working with their student-athletes both on the course and in the classroom. He received the award at the NCAA Division I Men's Golf Championship banquet at the Inverness Club in Toledo, Ohio, where Jack Nicklaus was the keynote speaker.

The Strickland Award recipient is invited to serve as the assistant coach on the following year's Palmer Cup team, and Sharp traveled to Portrush, Ireland and historic Royal Portrush Golf Club for the event in 2010. The United States team defeated Europe 13-11, their first victory on foreign soil since 2002.

Sharp was also named to the Virginia Tech Sports Hall of Fame in 2009. During Sharp's playing career at Virginia Tech, he won four collegiate events, including the 1995 Metro Conference Golf Championship as a senior. He left Virginia Tech as the all-time leader in career scoring for the Hokies, with a four-year average of 74.14. He also finished his Tech career with the most rounds played, and started in the number-one position in every tournament during that time. Sharp is the only Tech golfer to be both four-time all-conference and first team all-state. In addition, he was named to the NCAA All-District

3-North team twice. He is one of only three players in the history of the league to be a four-time All-Metro Conference selection. He was also selected as the 1995 Metro Conference student-athlete of the year and won the Medallion Award for the most outstanding male student-athlete at Virginia Tech in 1995.

"Brian has done an excellent job for us in the time he has been with our program," Hardwick said. "He has the innate ability to recognize potential immediately, which makes him extremely valuable as a recruiter. He has a wonderful work ethic and all of the attributes that make for a successful coach.

"He is not only one of the top players in Tech history, but also one of the most respected. A four-time MVP and three-time Most Dedicated Player award recipient during his career, it is no surprise that he has continued to have the same success as a coach that he had as a collegiate player and as a professional."

Sharp came to Virginia Tech from the Buy.com Tour (currently the Web.com Tour), where he played in 2002. Sharp turned professional in 1995 and played on various developmental tours before joining the Buy.com Tour. He won his first ever professional event in 1995 on the Powerbilt Tour at the Neuse Golf Club in Raleigh, N.C.

Sharp's duties with the Hokies include recruiting, the off-season conditioning program, instruction and player academic progress, as well as managing the Virginia Tech Golf Team Complex.

"Brian has an excellent understanding of the mechanics of the golf swing and is a very qualified teacher," Hardwick said. "He has all the qualities that any coach would like instilled in his own team — time management, academic prowess, social skills, public speaking ability, attention to detail, high moral character and a dedicated work ethic. We are extremely fortunate to have Brian as a member of our staff. He is an outstanding role model for our players."

A native of Winston-Salem, N.C., Sharp was captain of the 1994 and 1995 Hokie golf teams. He is married to the former Margaret Blackburn of Midlothian, Va. The couple resides in Blacksburg with daughter Meredith and son Cameron.

Brian Sharp was the assistant coach for the victorious Team USA in the 2010 Palmer Cup.

I watched Mark play throughout his entire junior career and amass one of the finest junior records in the state. The thing that always impressed me about him was that even when he wasn't at the top of his game, he was never out of a tournament. JOEY LANE

VIRGINIA STATE AMATEUR AND EASTERN AMATEUR CHAMPION

Joey Lane had an outstanding summer highlighted by back-to-back victories in Virginia's two most prestigious amateur championships.

On July 2, 2016, Joey Lane defeated Ji Soo Park to win the 103rd Virginia State Golf Association Amateur Championship at the Pete Dye River Course of Virginia Tech in Radford, Va. He became the fifth Virginia Tech player to win the event, joining Connie Sellers (1951), Neff McClary (1977), Allen Barber (1992) and Maclain Huger (2015).

Lane took a seven-up lead after the first 18 holes in the scheduled 36-hole final, eventually winning 8-and-6, the largest margin of victory in the championship in a decade. He became only the sixth player to win the championship following medalist honors in stroke play qualifying, joining the likes of Vinny Giles, Lanny Wadkins and Billy Hurley III. "That's pretty special," Lane said. "It's just kind of a cherry on top for this week."

The following week, Lane captured the prestigious Eastern Amateur at Elizabeth Manor Golf and Country Club in Portsmouth, Va. After beginning the final round one stroke behind the leader, Lane posted a final round of 65 to finish at 14 under-par and four strokes clear of a trio of players in second place.

"It is pretty huge for me (to win two weeks in a row)," Lane said. "Up until last week I hadn't won anything since junior golf and once you get into college golf and amateur golf it gets a lot tougher to win, so it is nice to know that I can contend and I have now found out that I can win."

Located in Southwest Virginia on a plateau between the Blue Ridge and Alleghany Mountains, Blacksburg combines the laid-back lifestyle of a small town with the amenities one would expect to find around a major center of higher education. The town and university have worked together to create a progressive community that ranks among the nation's elite living environments.

When BusinessWeek released its 2011 rankings, Blacksburg took top honors as "America's best place to raise a family," and Homes.com ranked Blacksburg No. 1 on its "Top 10 cities to raise a family" listing in 2012. Blacksburg gained national and international attention by creating the world's first "electronic village" in 1993. Businesses and industries have been drawn by the potential the town has to offer.

Established in 1798 by John and William Black, the town is surrounded by scenic mountain views that accentuate the area. Since its founding, Blacksburg has grown to become the largest town in Virginia. More than 42,000 residents (including Tech students) enjoy a close proximity to a variety of recreation areas such as the Blue Ridge Parkway, Appalachian Trail, Claytor Lake and the New River. The region features a moderate climate and four distinct seasons. Blacksburg's location is adjacent to major interstate highways and provides convenient access to most points in the southern and eastern parts of the country.

More information on Blacksburg can be found on the town's web site, www.blacksburg.gov.

OUTSTANDING UNIVERSITY HAS ONE OF THE NATION'S BEST ATHLETIC COMPLEXES

Dedicated to its motto, Ut Prosim (That I May Serve), Virginia Tech takes a hands-on, minds-on approach to education, preparing scholars to be leaders in their fields and communities. Since its founding as a land-grant college in 1872, Virginia Tech has grown to an enrollment of over 32,000. Nestled in the rolling mountains of Southwest Virginia, the campus of Virginia Tech has that rare quality — a major, thriving modern institute of higher learning, living in harmony with its beautiful surroundings.

The Hokies' exceptional athletic facilities dominate the horizon as visitors enter the campus from Southgate Drive. Lane Stadium/Worsham Field, which seats 65,632 fans, is the home of Tech's nationally ranked football team that has appeared in 24 consecutive bowl games. The football team utilizes a state-of-the-art locker room, which is adjacent to Lane Stadium and opens to the team's practice fields and indoor practice facility. Virginia Tech Carilion Court at Cassell Coliseum houses a 9,847-seat arena as well as athletic offices, locker rooms and training facilities. The Hahn Hurst Basketball Practice Center to the east of Cassell houses the men's and women's basketball offices, support areas, locker rooms and basketball courts.

Tech golfers now have access to the newly completed Willis and Mary Blackwood Indoor Golf Facility, located on the first floor of Cassell Coliseum. The area houses two simulators, a putting and chipping green, team locker rooms, staff offices and a conference room. The student-athletes also have access to the 7,000 square foot W.A. and Mae Street Olympic Sports Athletic Performance Center. Here athletes train with free weights under the supervision and instruction of senior director Terry Mitchell.

Other facilities include Rector Field House, site of an indoor AstroTurf football field and Mondo track; English Field, the home of the baseball team; the Tech Softball Park; the Johnson-Miller Track Complex; the Soccer Stadium and Thompson Field, home of the men's and women's soccer teams; lacrosse practice fields; the Christiansburg Aquatic Center, home of the men's and women's swimming teams; the Virginia Tech Golf Course and the Pete Dye River Course of Virginia Tech, site of the Virginia Tech Golf Team Complex.

The Merryman Center is a two-story building on the west side of the Jamerson Athletic Center in the heart of the athletic complex. It is a 40,000-square foot all-purpose facility. The second floor houses an entranceway to the athletic complex, a classroom area and the 130-seat McConnell auditorium. The first floor includes a conditioning and weightlifting complex, a multipurpose gymnasium and an expanded area for sports medicine and training.

Lane Stadium, home of the Hokies' nationally ranked football program, seats 65,632 fans and is known as one of the top venues in collegiate sports.

The Merryman Center is the centerpiece of Virginia Tech's athletic compound.

Nearby Cochrane Hall houses many of Tech's student-athletes. West End Market is an award-winning dining facility located in Cochrane. The university's dining services have been ranked in the top 3 for "Best Campus Food" since 2006, receiving the No. 1 ranking three times, most recently in 2014.

Also on the Virginia Tech campus is the Burrows-Burleson indoor and outdoor tennis facility and the War Memorial Gym, which has an Olympic-sized pool and facilities for gymnastics, volleyball, handball, racquetball and basketball.

A student recreational facility, McComas Hall, is located on the Tech campus as well. This facility houses the student health center, an indoor pool, gyms, a jogging track and various other exercise equipment for Tech students.

Virginia Tech's ever-expanding athletic complex is, without question, one of the finest in the United States.

9,847-seat Virginia Tech Carilion Court at Cassell Coliseum hosts basketball games and other sporting events.

HOKIES IN THE COMMUNITY

The Hokie men's golf team has always been a valuable member of the Virginia Tech community, volunteering its time to help others on several occasions throughout the year. Among other events the past few seasons, the team takes a day away from the course each spring to visit the Shriners Hospital for Children in Greenville, S.C.

The visit, arranged through the Virginia Tech Athletics Department's Office of Student-Athlete Development, is an opportunity for the team to "give back" to the community.

The Hokies take posters of the team, Virginia Tech logoed golf balls, brochures and Hokie Kids Club T-shirts for every child at the hospital. They visit each room, spending time with many of the children who come to the hospital for daily treatments. In all, the team members have interacted with more than 100 kids and parents, talking and playing games, even using their own putters to teach the kids how to putt.

"Spending time in the hospital is hard, especially when you are a kid," said Melissa Bayles, Public Relations Specialist for the Shriners Hospitals for Children-Greenville. "When the Virginia Tech golf team comes to Shriners Hospitals for Children, they do more than just complete a community service project; they bring smiles and happiness to our patients. Even if just for a few minutes, they help the kids forget about their pain.

"As an employee, it is touching to see how well the golfers interact with our patients. They aren't afraid to get close to the kids, even visiting the ones in isolation. For those patients, the memory of the team's visit will last a lifetime. We hope the Virginia Tech golf team will continue to make its visit to the Greenville Shriners Hospital an annual event," Bayles said.

The golf team, as do all Virginia Tech athletics teams, spends countless hours enriching the lives of other members of the community, on campus, in Blacksburg and around the region. For more information, please contact the Office of Student-Athlete Development.

PETE DYE RIVER COURSE OF VIRGINIA TECH

Hokies' World-Class Facility Ranked In Top 10 of Golfweek's Best Campus Courses

Renowned golf architect Pete Dye began a renovation of The River Course of Virginia Tech in 2004. With the facility's completion, the Pete Dye River Course of Virginia Tech has become a beautiful reality. Opening in August 2005, the course was selected by Golf Digest as one of the Top 5 "Best Newly Remodeled Courses in America" for 2006. In August 2016, the course was selected 10th on the list of Golfweek's Best Campus Courses, the highest ranking for any university in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

The Pete Dye River Course continues building its reputation as a championship destination and has already hosted several prestigious events, including the 2011 NCAA Division I Men's Golf East Regional, the 2011 Virginias-Carolinas Women's Team Matches and the 2012 Mid-Atlantic Junior Invitational. Because of the rave reviews the facility received following these events, it was also selected to host the 2016 VSGA Amateur Championship last summer.

"This world-class golf course, coupled with our magnificent clubhouse, is an exciting and challenging venue for the top golfers at all levels," said Jay Hardwick, director of golf operations at Virginia Tech and head golf coach.

It was included in Golf Digest's "Best Places to Play" for 2008-2009 as a coveted 4-1/2-star facility. This rating was the highest awarded in Virginia, Kentucky, West Virginia and Tennessee and was also shared with The Homestead's Cascades Course, The Meadows Course at the Greenbrier, Kingsmill's River Course, and Pinehurst Resort Courses No. 4, 6, 7 & 8. "The River" was also named as one of the "100 Middle Atlantic Must-Play Courses for 2008."

In addition to the renovation, a turf care center was constructed, as well as the Virginia Tech Golf Team Complex, which houses an indoor teaching center that opens to the outside range and is equipped with the latest video swing analysis system. This facility also includes locker rooms, club repair room, players' lounge, a recruit welcome area and team meeting room for the Virginia Tech golf team. A covered tee area, which is enclosed on three sides, is located at the back of the practice range and is equipped with fans, radiant heaters and lights.

These improvements were made possible by support from Bill and Alice Goodwin of Richmond, Va. Mr. Goodwin, a Virginia Tech alumnus, is an avid golfer who wanted to provide the Virginia Tech golf team and the university community an opportunity to play on a world-caliber championship course. The gift covered all costs of design and construction.

World-renowned architect Pete Dye describes the course renovations taking place in 2004 to the Tech golf team.

The challenging par-five third hole is as intimidating as it is beautiful.

The indoor facility was constructed adjacent to the state-of-the-art golf team practice area, which was made possible through the generosity of long-time golf team supporter and scholarship donor, the late C.M. "Buddy" Neviaser, and his late wife, Doris. This facility provides Tech players with one of the finest total practice complexes in the nation. The facility was officially dedicated in September 2004.

The dedication of a $5.5 million clubhouse at the Pete Dye River Course of Virginia Tech took place in October 2010. The Harry S. and Patsy B. Williams Clubhouse is named in honor of the late Harry S. and late Patsy B. Williams, long-time supporters of Virginia Tech athletics and academics. Harry Williams graduated from Virginia Tech in 1955. Construction on the clubhouse was completed in May 2010 and the views of the golf course from the 4,000 square foot deck surrounding it are breathtaking. The new facility consists of a spacious golf shop, multi-purpose conference room, men's and ladies' locker rooms, and the Hackin' Hokie Grille.

Pete Dye is noted as one of the finest golf course architects in the world. The Indiana native has worked with the Goodwins in the past, most notably on the Ocean Course at Kiawah Island, host of the 1994 Ryder Cup. He has also designed The Tournament Players Club at Sawgrass, Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla.; the PGA West Stadium Course in La Quinta, Calif.; Brickyard Crossing Golf Course in Indianapolis, Ind.; Crooked Stick Golf Club in Carmel, Ind.; Harbour Town Golf Links and The Colleton River Dye Course in Hilton Head, S.C.; and the Honors Course in Chattanooga, Tenn.

Dye is known for enhancing the existing landscape and working within the natural beauty of the area. He used all of the natural attributes of the previous course, including the New River, with its adjoining rock formations and natural trees and vegetation.

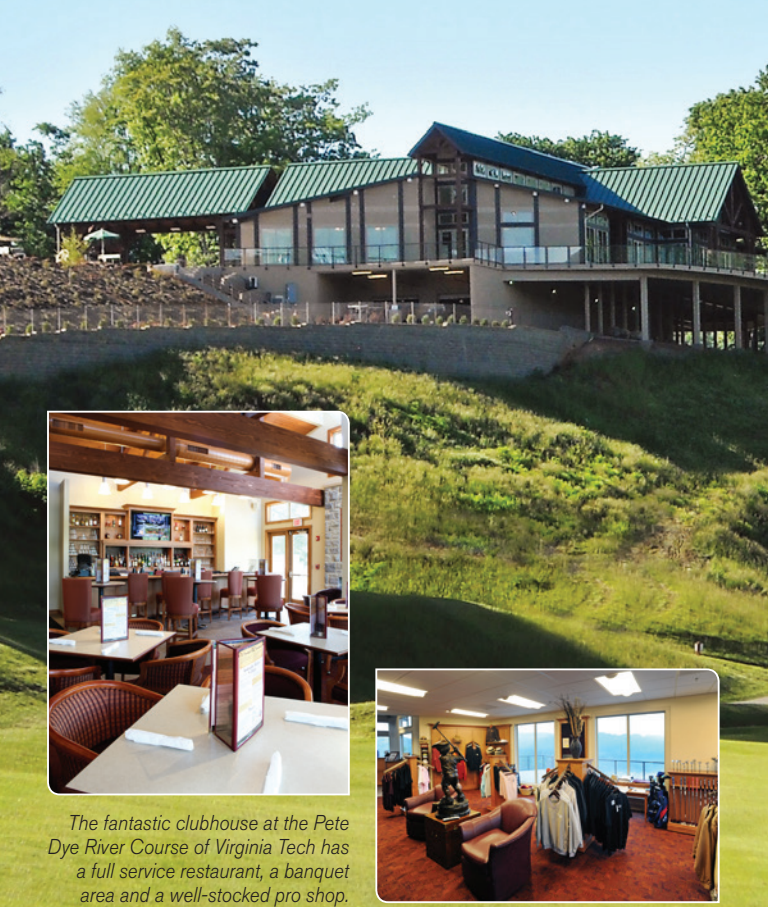

"This is a tremendous benefit for Virginia Tech, our golf program, the membership and the golfing community," Hardwick said. "We are indeed fortunate to have a Pete Dye signature golf course, named after one of the most renowned and respected golf course architects of all time."

The project allows for play by all residents of the New River Valley community, as the course is open to the public for daily play. Club members, daily fee golfers, visitors, faculty, staff and students of Virginia Tech and all others are afforded access to one of the finest golf courses in the nation. The nationally ranked layout, which complements the natural beauty of the area and the adjacent New River, allows for future economic growth. The course was designed to become a destination for golfers looking to play on the finest courses and a site for tournaments and championship events.

The Pete Dye River Course of Virginia Tech has done for Hokie golf what Lane Stadium/Worsham Field did for Virginia Tech football. It is simply "The Best."

The picturesque par-three No. 7 is the shortest, but one of the most demanding holes on the course.

The fantastic clubhouse at the Pete Dye River Course of Virginia Tech has a full service restaurant, a banquet area and a well-stocked pro shop.

From its perch high on a bluff, the clubhouse provides beautiful views of the New River and the Pete Dye River Course of Virginia Tech.

The Willis and Mary Blackwood Indoor Golf Facility, located on the bottom floor of Cassell Coliseum, is a $600,000 improvement to the already spectacular resources available to the men's and women's golf teams at Virginia Tech.

Thanks to a generous donation from the Blackwoods, this 2,600 square-foot new facility includes offices for the coaches, a conference room, private restrooms and locker rooms for the men and women, and a small lounge area. More importantly, the facility includes a chipping and putting area and two state-of-the-art golf simulators that allow for skill instruction and practice during inclement weather and also at night.

The simulators are Foresight Sports' GC2 launch monitors. Both include HMT head measurement systems attachments. These top-flight simulators are more accurate indoors and allow for better evaluation of players' games. Players also will be able to play simulated games on a wide variety of prominent courses nationwide to sharpen their games.

The indoor golf facility's convenience to Tech's main campus means that student-athletes will not have to travel to the Pete Dye River Course during winter months to work on their games. It also is located in close proximity to nutrition, sports medicine and strength and conditioning areas, thus adding to the convenience of the facility for student-athletes.

The indoor facility opened this past January and has been helping the Hokies' golfers prepare for the upcoming spring season.

The 12th hole at Blacksburg Country Club is rated one of the top holes in Southwest Virginia.

In addition to the Pete Dye River Course of Virginia Tech, the Hokie golf team also enjoys the use of the Virginia Tech Golf Course and Blacksburg Country Club.

Blacksburg Country Club, former site of the Virginia State Amateur and Virginia State Open Championships, has also hosted the VSGA Junior Boys Championship in 1986, 1994, 2003, and 2008, as well as the 1988 VSGA Junior Girls Championship.

"We very much appreciate the outstanding support we have received from the staff and members of Blacksburg Country Club in allowing our team the use of their fine golf course," Tech coach Jay Hardwick said.

The nine-hole Virginia Tech Golf Course, known for some of the finest greens in the state, is located on campus. In addition, a short game and wedge area complete with a chipping and putting green has been built and its location is a benefit to the Hokies for playing and practicing.

"The opportunity to have the use of many outstanding golf courses is a great asset to our program," Hardwick said. "All three courses are always in superb condition and are well known for their fine bent grass greens."

Virginia Tech's golfing facilities do not stop with those three outstanding layouts. The Hokies are extended playing privileges at nearby Olde Mill Golf Club in Laurel Fork, Draper Valley Golf Club in Pulaski, Hanging Rock Golf Club in Salem, and Primland Resort in Meadows of Dan.

Olde Mill Golf Club at Groundhog Mountain offers golfers a unique challenge of tree-lined mountainous fairways winding through 55 acres of lakes and streams.

2015-2016 REVIEW

Hokies extend NCAA streak to 10 years

Replacing players such as Scott Vincent and Trevor Cone, both two-time All-Americans and No. 1 and 2 respectively on the all-time Virginia Tech scoring list, can be a daunting task for any team. However, it is also an opportunity for younger players to increase playing time and continue to develop throughout the season. That was certainly the case for junior co-captain Joey Lane. He had an outstanding year and received an individual bid to the NCAA Franklin Regional, contested at the Legends Club in Franklin, Tenn. This was the Hokies' 10th straight appearance and marks the 14th time in the last 16 years that Tech has participated in postseason play. To finish off a terrific year, Lane won the 2016 Virginia State Amateur Championship at the team's home course, the Pete Dye River Course of Virginia Tech, joining Billy Hurley, Lanny Wadkins, Vinny Giles, Wynsol Spencer, and Chandler Harper as the only players in the 103 years of the tournament to earn medalist honors and go on to win the championship. This was the second year in a row that a Virginia Tech player has won the Virginia State Amateur, as senior co-captain Maclain Huge won the title in 2015.

Another highlight of the season was having four players named as All-American Scholars. Huge, junior Drew Johnson, Lane, and junior Ryan Mondy all received this honor, which is a tribute to their hard work both in the classroom and on the golf course. Huge joins former players Drew Weaver and Bryce Chalkley as two-time winners of this award for the Hokies. When you consider that Virginia Tech has had nine players earn All-American Scholar status in the past, having four in one season is quite an accomplishment.

The team's lone senior, Huge played well again to end a solid career at Virginia Tech. He played in the lineup in every event during his four years and finished 11th on the all-time scoring list with a 73.97 average. Lane posted career-best fourth place finishes at the Bank of Tennessee Intercollegiate and the Kiawah Classic, and added three other Top 10 finishes, including a seventh place finish at the ACC championship, where he shot a 67 in the final round. He led the team in scoring with a 72.23 average, as well as "Crunch Time" scoring with a final round average of 72.55, and posted 16 rounds at par-or-better. Lane earned the team's Player of the Year award and was also selected as the Most Improved Player by his teammates. As a testament to his fine play throughout the year, he was named to the Virginia Collegiate All-State second team. Lane was once again elected captain by his teammates for the 2016-17 season.

Mondy was named the team's strength and conditioning award winner for the second straight year. He competed in all the events except one during the season and posted a career-best 16th place finish at the Bridgestone Golf Collegiate. Johnson was in the lineup for every event this season. His score counted for the team in 25 of 31 rounds played and he was fourth on the team in scoring with a 75.13 average. Sophomores Dan Woodbury and Ian Hildebrand competed in three and five events, respectively, during the season and Woodbury was named the team's Most Dedicated Player. The team's Rookie of the Year, freshman Blake Fiest, played in eight tournaments, including the ACC championship. Fiest posted six rounds at par-or-better in those events, which was third on the team. Freshman Logan Yates played the fall season and then took the spring semester off for family reasons; however, he certainly made an impact on the team. In the five events during the fall season he was second on the team in scoring with a 73.62 average, led the team in "Crunch Time" scoring at 72.80, shot par or better five times, and was low for the team at the VCU/Janney Shootout in his first collegiate event.

Logan Yates was second on the team in scoring in Fall 2015 with a 73.62 average.

HACKIN' HOKIES

Thirty-three years ago, a small group of Virginia Tech supporters traveled to the Metro Conference Championship at Wild Dunes Golf Links on the Isle of Palms, S.C., in a show of support for the Tech golf team. A great friendship developed between this group and the players. As a result, these supporters were affectionately tagged the "Hackin' Hokies."

Today, this group, totaling over 100 members, travels annually with the team, and has been the major supporter of the Virginia Tech golf program.

The Virginia Tech golf team wishes to express its sincere appreciation to the "Hackin' Hokies" for their loyal support. As a token of its appreciation, the team recognizes a member of the "Hackin' Hokies" each year with the team's Appreciation Award. The recipient of the 2016 award was Took Kern. HOKIE GOLF HISTORY

The story of the Virginia Tech golf team dates back to the 1932-33 season. The Techmen have had success since the very beginning, with their first victory coming on April 23, 1933, when the team defeated Roanoke College, 10-2.

The Hokies continued to improve during the early years and made their first NCAA championship appearance in 1957 at Colorado Springs, Colo. In 1962, Tech returned to the NCAA tournament and placed 26th at Duke University Golf Course in Durham, N.C.

Tech was a more dominant force in 1965, as the team tied for 11th at the NCAA championship in Knoxville, Tenn. The late Tim Collins finished in seventh place individually in that event, then went on to finish 20th the following year and in fifth place in the 1967 tournament, the best ever individual performance for a Virginia Tech golfer in the NCAA championship. The Hokies had their best ever team result that year as well, finishing sixth. Collins earned All-America status in 1965 and 1967, and was inducted into the Virginia Tech Sports Hall of Fame in 1985. From 1968 to 1971, Tech sent four representatives (one each year) to the NCAA championship.

Also a standout in the mid-1960s, and a teammate of Collins, was Neff McClary. In 1965, he won the Southern Conference individual championship and helped pace the Hokies to three straight Virginia State Intercollegiate championships in 1965, 1966 and 1967. Between 1960 and 1995, Tech won this prestigious event 17 times. McClary was inducted into the Tech Hall of Fame in 1994 and Connie Sellers, the co-captain of the 1951 team and winner of the Virginia State Amateur that same year, was inducted in 1996. Current associate head coach Brian Sharp, the only Tech golfer to be both a four-time all-conference selection and a four-time first-team all-state honoree, was inducted in 2009. All-American and three-time PGA Tour winner, Johnson Wagner, was inducted in 2013. Fellow All-American Brendon de Jonge, a member of the 2013 President's Cup International Team and Wagner's former teammate at Virginia Tech, was inducted in 2014.

The '94 squad won three events, including the Metro Conference Championship, and finished 19th in the NCAA Championship.

The youngest team in Tech history, the 1999 Hokies (freshmen Brendon de Jonge, Chris McKeel and Matt Hollerbach, and sophomores Johnson Wagner and Brian Krusoe) captured the first tournament of the season, the G. Gunby Jordan/Callaway Gardens Invitational.

An outstanding individual accomplishment for a Virginia Tech golfer came in the summer of 2007, when Drew Weaver won the British Amateur. By virtue of winning this historic championship, he competed in the 2007 British Open and received an invitation to the 2008 Masters Tournament, golf's most prestigious event. Weaver was also a member of the victorious Team USA in the 2009 Walker Cup.

The Hokies have won several conference championships, including eight titles in four different conferences in a 15-year span from 1993 to 2007. The team has appeared in nine of the past 10 NCAA Division I Golf Regionals, and most recently qualified for the 2014 NCAA championship. Virginia Tech also had consecutive trips to the regionals from 2001 to 2004, advancing to the NCAA championship two of those years and finishing eighth in 2001. Since the beginning, the Tech squad has had 44 winning seasons and has continued to build a winning tradition.

HOKIES ON THE PGA TOUR

Former Hokies and close friends Johnson Wagner and Brendon de Jonge competed on the PGA Tour once again in 2016. Wagner, a three-time winner on Tour, has earned over $11 million in ten full seasons. His 2016 campaign included three Top 10 finishes, highlighted by a pair of fifth place finishes in the last two regular season events. He finished the year 78th in the FedEx Cup standings and is fully exempt on the PGA Tour for the 2017 season.

A member of the International Team for the 2013 President's Cup, de Jonge has now earned over $12 million during his career. Unfortunately, in 2016 he finished outside the Top 150 on Tour for the first time in 10 years, with an injury late in the season hindering his run in the four-tournament Web.com Tour playoffs. De Jonge will rely on sponsor exemptions to begin his season on Tour in 2017.
